

Booze News

The Smith Gets Its Own Beer

By Chantal Martineau, Wed., Apr. 6 2011 @ 3:00PM

Categories: Booze News, Featured

f Share 39 Like 39 Submit 7 retweet 0 Digg ↑

Plinkk/flickr

Signature suds.

What Happens When isn't the only restaurant offering proprietary booze.

The Smith has enlisted Six Points Brewery to create a house beer that will be available on tap exclusively at the restaurant and at Jane. A spokesperson says the East Village Ale, or E.V.A., is a wheat beer-meets-pilsner-meets-pale ale. It's unfiltered, light to medium bodied, with notes of fruit, honey, and spice. Sounds like this serious gastropub just got a little more serious.

Have a restaurant tip or other food news? Send it to fork@villagevoice.com.

And follow us on Twitter: @ForkintheRoadVV.